In Dunant's Notice sur la Régence de Tunis, a new edition of which is in preparation, the theme of Arab hospitality is presented through a great number of details. "Henry Dunant appears to be fascinated by the duty to be loyal, by the responsibility men have to shoulder when tied by a promise, by man's moral obligation. That idea runs throughout the book from cover to cover." Mr. Louca then adds, after declaring that the battle of Solferino only acted as a catalyst in Dunant's heart: "From Geneva to Solferino, the most direct road runs through Africa".

Regardless of the difficulty of achieving agreements, nations must find a way to abolish war, to defuse their nuclear armaments, and to destroy their chemical and biological weapons. The consequences of a global war would be immediate and irreversible, and it is therefore also the responsibility of individuals and groups to refuse to participate in research or processes that might, if used, result in the extermination of the human species.

Earth, which has seemed so large, must now be seen in its smallness. We live in a closed system, absolutely dependent on Earth and on each other for our lives and those of succeeding generations. The many things that divide us are therefore of infinitely less importance than the interdependence and danger that unite us.

We believe that it is literally true that only by transcending our divisions will men be able to keep Earth as their home.

Problems, issues, challenges of nursing research, by Faye G. Abdellah, R. N., The Canadian Nurse, Montreal May 1971.

..Model and theory development should be undertaken in nursing, but it must be related to nursing practice. Clearly there will be no one theory of nursing, but multiple theories that eventually will comprise a nursing science.

Nursing science can deal only with those models and theories that can be set right, challenged, and corrected. Nursing science is defined
