

This well-documented work is enriched by its many references to the practical implementation of humanitarian law, especially the work of the ICRC. It is a useful contribution to our understanding of this new provision. By putting the whole matter in its proper perspective, Koenig makes, in his own words, a "plea" for ratification of Additional Protocol I.

THE LAW OF WAR AND NEUTRALITY

Recently published: The Law of War and Neutrality—a Selective English-language Bibliography, prepared by Howard S. Levie, Oceana Publications, Inc., Dobbs Ferry, New York, 1988.

This bibliography has been compiled by an American who is very well known among experts on the law of armed conflicts. It is especially intended for English-speaking readers since it refers only to works published in English. Research workers in this field will find the new bibliography by Levie invaluable.

The bibliography lists 2,284 references; to facilitate consultation it is divided into 21 sections which are further broken down into a large number of sub-sections. At the end there is a helpful author index.
